Focus on the communication with late student arrivals (Impact versus Intent)

Prompt responses via Emails,Radios, Telephone, Customer Service Viewpoint, for colleagues, school admin, parents and teachers

Acknowledge cultural respect and humility by creating a cultural guide – (could possibly be a laminated document that has a list of various languages with a brief description of how to greet people from their culture (hand shake; look in the eye, etc). This is something that is a quick read for office staff.

Be aware of families' home language – families "assumptions"-Over communicate-under assume

Tools and Needs appropriate for success. These would be alternatives to suspension in the traditional manner. These would be consequences that match the offense and are similar to what an adult may face. (extra work around the school, etc.

District staff, school administrators, front office staff (office managers), student committees, parent or staff committees, certified and non-certified staff

When should we start the roll out:

Planning and training for DO and school administrators in Summer
Teachers will be trained when they arrive in summer/fall.
Students will be trained at the beginning of each school year.

How will all this be rolled out:

Training for school staff on phrasing to use when a student arrives late for class. This can make the difference in a student's day.
Bring in a consultant on effective communication. Set aside a training day.
Recommend sending a short email in response (automated email response, if necessary) acknowledging the email and that you will get back with them as soon as possible.
Important documents like cultural guides can be saved by the office staff. When a family comes in who are new to the country the office staff can greet them respectfully.
Give School Admin suggestions on alternatives to the traditional manner in handling a suspension. These would be tasks to build the students character, etc.
Culturally Responsive interventions(...McKinney Vento was mentioned)
